- Fine Motor Skills:
  - Some children struggle with tasks that require strength, control, and dexterity of the small hand muscles. Impaired fine motor skills can impact a child's ability to use scissors, color, write with legible handwriting, etc.

- Sensory Processing:
  - Children who have trouble modulating sensory input may experience over-sensitivity (hypersensitivity), under-sensitivity (hyposensitivity) or both which can impair functioning at school.

- Self Care Skills:
  - OTs can work on the sequencing, motor planning and motor skills needed to complete activities such as opening and closing fasteners (buttons / zippers) and tying shoelaces.
Kivia Ashford, LMSW

As a school social worker, my role is to act as a liaison and a resource between home, school and the community. In addition, I provide social-emotional/behavioral support for students (through parental/guardian consent) in order to help students make academic progress. As a result of our current reality, I am excited to be supporting students and their families remotely!
